X. PROJECTS

DIGITAL PROJECTS AS PI

TTHUB. Recursos sobre de tecnologías del texto y edición digital. <https://tthub.io>

TTHub is a work in progress that gathers teaching materials in Spanish and multiple resources devoted to digital editing and in general to text technologies. The site hosts several online tutorials in the section "Aprende" that can be accessed online or be downloaded in PDF from the academic repository Zenodo "TEI en español". TTHub is the first platforms offering materials to learn the Text Encoding Initiative in Spanish and it is already widely used by the Spanish Speaking community. It was awarded "Best Tool and resource" 2019 by the Asociación de Humanidades Hispánicas and "Special 2020 TEI Community Prize" by the Text Encoding Initiative and its annual Rahtz Prize for TEI Ingenuity.

Archive of Biographical Writings in Medieval and Early Modern Iberia. <https://archbio.miami.edu>

In the long term, this project aims to produce a digital archive of biographical collections written in Iberia from 14th to 16th centuries and make them available to the international scholarly community to search, consult, read, use and reuse. So far, it is a tool 'in construction' that helps me with my research for my second book project offering me the possibility to conceive a prosopographical database and a space for the digital editing of the texts (biographies). Funded by three University of Miami Fellowships in the A&H (2019-2020: 7,400$; 2021-2022: $7,500; 2022-2023: $7,500) and one UM Relief Funding Award by the OVPRS: $2,500)

Digital Narratives of COVID-19 (PG01314) <https://covid.dh.miami.edu/>

This project explores the social-digital narrative behind the massive digital data about COVID-19 from a humanistic and a bilingual perspective, bringing together a community of scholars and students from the University of Miami (USA) and CONICET (Argentina). We analyze data from growing crowdsourced resources, especially from social media (Twitter), focusing on English and Spanish data within the area of South Florida. (May 2020-2021) Funded by CAS, UM (11,500$)
